

Thomas K. Baker

Raytheon Tactical Intelligence Systems
Senior Manager
Intelligence and Information Systems

Raytheon Company

7700 Arlington Boulevard
Falls Church, Virginia
22042 USA
703.289.1393
703.849.1602 FAX
tbaker@raytheon.com

Thomas K. Baker is senior manager for international programs for Raytheon Tactical Intelligence Systems a business unit of Raytheon Company's Intelligence and Information Systems.

Baker has been employed by Raytheon since 1984 and during his tenure he has been employed in a series of positions with a steady progression of increasing responsibilities involving both engineering and program management.

He has been in his current role as a senior manager for program management since 2002. During this period his responsibilities have included program execution and business development with a current emphasis on international efforts in Australia, Canada and the United Kingdom.

Between 1997 and 2001 Baker was an engineering manager with control of more than 100 multi-disciplined engineers responsible for delivering customer solutions focused on intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance (ISR) applications supporting multiple program areas.

Biography

Between 1994 and 1996, Mr. Baker was the software engineering manager responsible for more than 30 software engineers delivering telecommunication surveillance products for a variety of customers in domestic and international markets.

Between 1990 and 1993, Mr. Baker was a software engineering supervisor for two significant programs; Ground Launched – Tacit Rainbow and Star Windows programs, where he was accountable for technical leadership and program growth for eight software engineers.

Between 1984 and 1989, Baker was software engineer working on a variety of ISR programs and also supported a various proposal activities as the lead engineer. Prior 1984, he worked for Texas Instruments as a software engineer writing embedded software.

Baker graduated in 1982 from Ohio University in Computer Science.