

Biography

Murray Hundleby is Head of Legal Affairs and Company Secretary for Raytheon Australia.

Based in Canberra and reporting both to the Managing Director of Raytheon Australia Pty Ltd and to the US law department of Raytheon Company, Murray is responsible for all legal, ethics and export/import matters arising within Raytheon Australia Pty Ltd. In this role Murray leads the Australian law, ethics and EX/IM teams and provides close support to the Raytheon Australia Pty Ltd leadership team, providing advice and counsel on a wide range of issues.

Murray has more than 25 years of corporate legal experience, including 5 years as VP and Chief Legal Officer - Australia for Peabody Energy and almost a decade as Chief Counsel – Australia for the Boeing Company. Previously Murray was General Counsel for the Federal Airports Corporation, which owned and operated 22 airports in Australia before they were privatised.

Murray holds a Master of Laws Degree in International law from University College London, a Diploma in Air and Space Law from the London Institute of World Affairs, a Bachelor of Laws degree from the University of Canterbury in New Zealand and a Post Graduate Certificate in Business Administration from the University of Technology, Sydney.

Murray is also a certified company director, company secretary and mediator.